The Corona virus pandemic and the effects of the lockdown and restriction of movements of Nigerians

This report is to broaden your knowledge about the coronavirus pandemic and how the federal government will react to the coronavirus pandemic and how the citizens in Nigeria would also react to the pandemic.

Abstract: corona virus cause common cold and infections caused by corona virus are generally self resolving. Spread of the infection occurred worldwide, however most of the mortality cases occurred in the middle east.

The corona virus pandemic as made the federal government to force lockdown all over Nigeria and movement of the Nigerians have been restricted. As more than 25 million people are placed on lockdown in parts of Nigeria in a bid to curtail the spread of coronavirus, poor people in congested neighbourhoods are worried about how they will cope. These set of people are less concerned about the virus but are more concerned on how they will survive. Some of them sell food stuffs in the market or in small stores and that is the only way they make money to survive but due to the lockdown and the restriction of movements they now have the mentality that if they stay home they will die of hunger.

Even though the corona virus pandemic is to be prevented, it is very hard to maintain in Nigeria because most people believe that 'death is death'. They rather believe in leaving their houses to sell their goods and they neglect social distancing. The lockdown as made many poor people to die rather than the coronavirus.

What is to be recommended for this effects of the lockdown is that the Federal government should enforce strict laws to keep everyone at home and for those who do not have homes, the federal government should provide isolation buildings for them and should be properly vaccinated and also good provision of food for the needy to prevent spread of this virus. Those who refuse to obey the law should be disciplined.
