

Name: Atolagbe Jamila
College: SMS
Department: Business Administration
Martic no: 19/sms03/007
Level:100L

Corona pandemic and effect of the lockdown.

Corona virus is a highly infectious virus that can be spread from one person to another through hand touching and not keeping social distance from people.

The corona pandemic has become so serious to the point that the government has issued a nationwide lockdown but the lockdown has greatly affected the economy of Nigeria and other countries by reducing the productivity of the country.

The lockdown restriction as also affected the price of crude oil which is one of Nigeria's main source of income to the point of it reaching negative, meaning that we have to pay refineries to take the crude oil of our hands.

Also due to the lockdown food and items are becoming more and more expensive and with the Ramadan period approaching it has become even more expensive and as things are going majority Nigerian are going to go hungry because they would not be able to afford it due to the fact that their main source of income is obtained from doing jobs that needs them to come in contact with other people.

And I also feel like the lockdown is just going to make people interact more because and I am saying this from experience when the lockdown is put on hold and allowing people to come out and restock their food and items many would rush out to buy what they need and would make the market full to the point that people would have no choice but to touch each other.

And also feel that the lockdown would lead to an increase in the crime rate because people are not allowed to go to work and earn money and would have to find an alternative to survive this pandemic with how expensive things are becoming.

These are just a few effect the lockdown has on the people of Nigeria.

Thank you.