

18

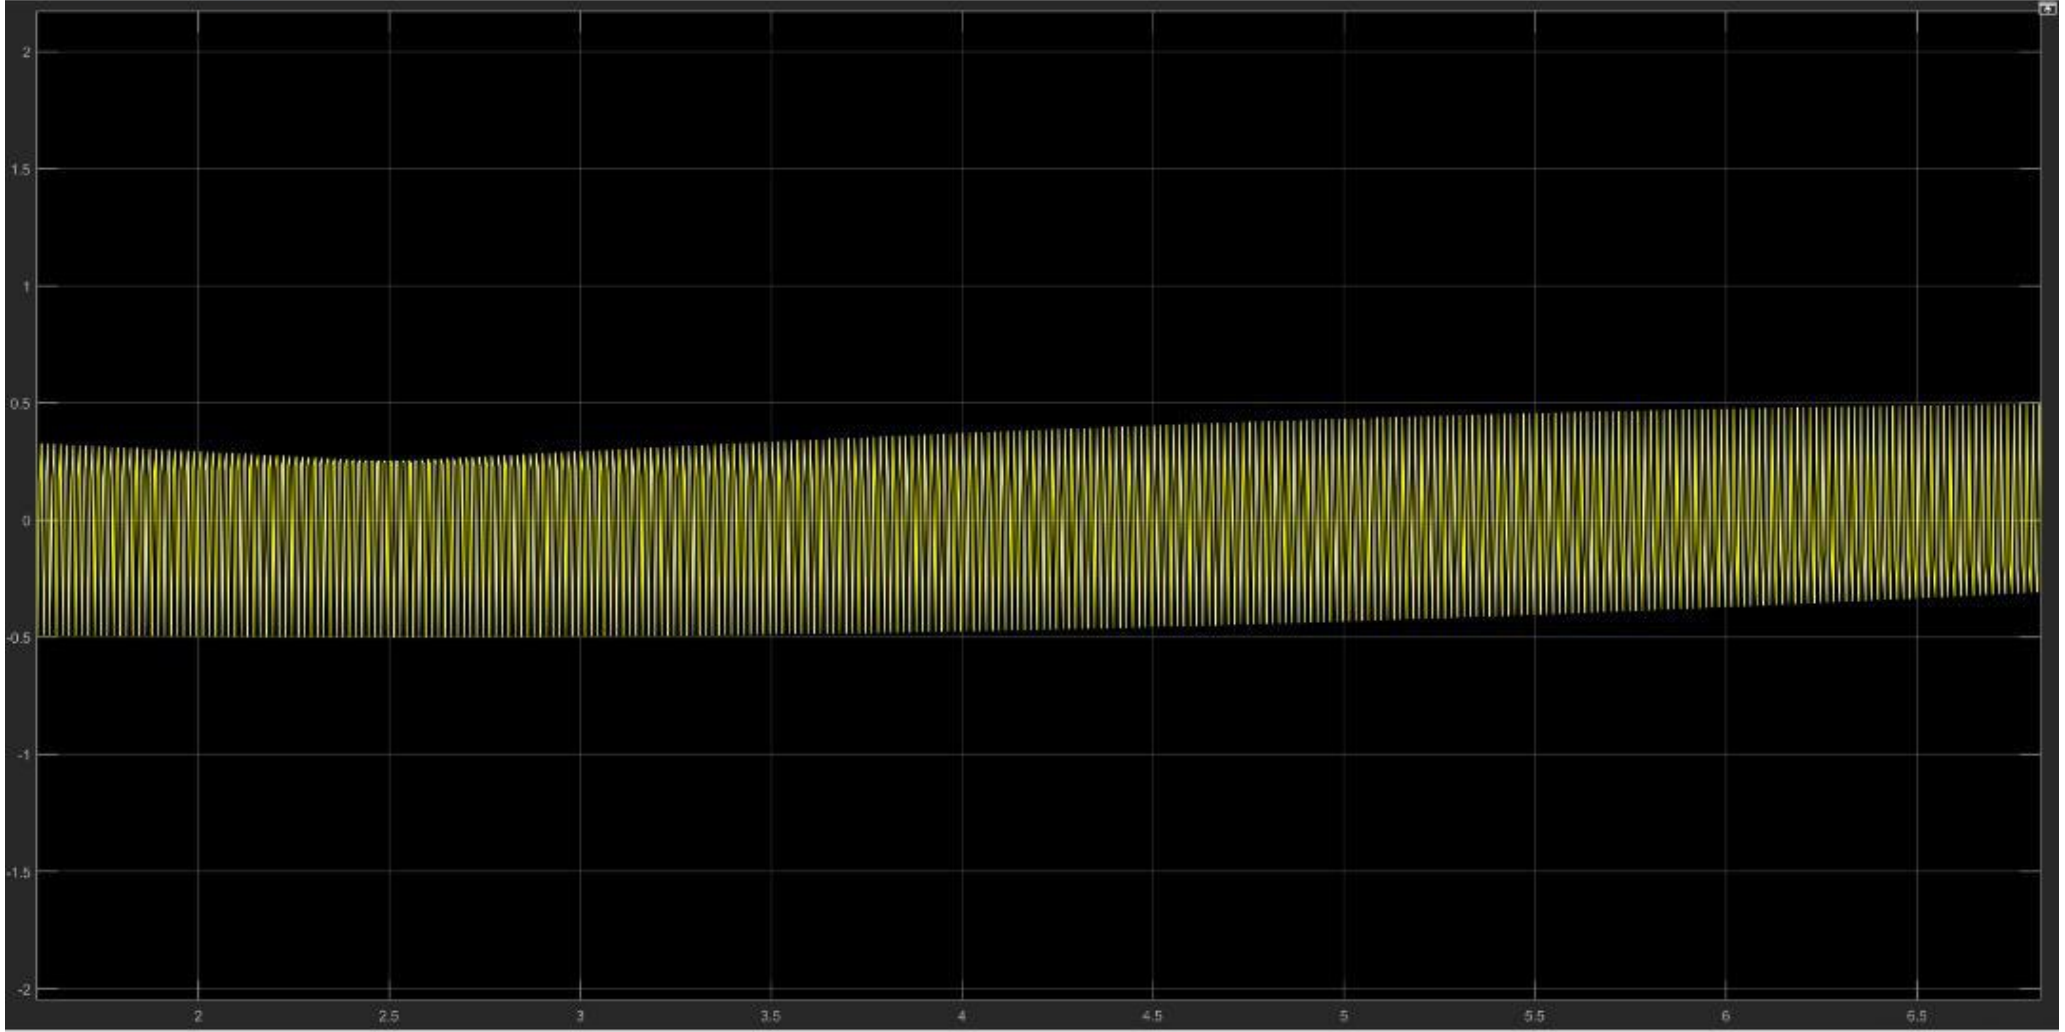

a) Filters are electronic circuits that remove any unwanted components or features from a signal. They are widely used in instrumentation, electronics and communication systems, especially in signal and image processing systems. ~~Analog~~ Digital filters are easy to modify and calibrate while in use in digital signal processing, they are very simple to design and they are cost effective.

Scope1

File Tools View Simulation Help

Ready

Sample based T=10.000

