Some students only start studying seriously when the exam dates are near. If students manage their time for studying as early as they begin a new class and study regularly by the following timetable, then it helps them to accomplish more in the class than other students.

Students need to follow the to-do list and need to set a timetable for every activity. If students' priorities their task based on the importance, then it will very helpful in their career.
3. During exams, students need to complete the attempted question paper. During exams the time is limited. Within that time, they must prove what they learned in the whole year. Some students have great knowledge and know almost everything about the subject, but they failed to attempt the question paper in 2-3 hours fixed time. That is why managing time for all questions is important. All questions are important to get maximum marks. Students need to understand what question requires more time. How can all 10 or 5 questions be answered in 3 hours' time? Three things are very helpful for students to attempt the question paper.

First, if the students learned regularly about the subjects and question then they don't have to worry about the time because they know the answer immediately without too much thought. Secondly, if they learned well from their teachers how to attempt the question paper in a fixed time they will do well. The third is their own creativity. For instance, few students do most difficult questions first, which takes more time and then go for the other questions. These kinds of time management skills are great.

In the future when students face time management questions in an interview they perform better. Time conscious students who are great in managing time during their study can do more work later in a job than others. They don't get stressed because of project deadlines. They become more productive than others.
